(File) Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis on Tuesday said he has recovered from an illness and was "very happy" that the state has been declared free of the new coronavirus. As his government claimed victory in the count with the NCP, the Shiv Sena and the Congress, Fadnavis told reporters that a four-member team of doctors from the Union Ministry of Health has been asked to provide an assessment and their report is awaited. The first person to be infected with the virus in the country was from Maharashtra. "I have recovered from my illness, I am very happy that Maharashtra is free of Covid-19. After analysing the situation, I have instructed the Maharashtra State Health Department to gather all relevant information through proper inquiries. A four-member group of doctors from the Ministry of Health has been requested to arrive here to assess the situation. Their report will be submitted to me," the Chief Minister said. He said the report will help the government decide its future policy. "Till then, I will remain in quarantine," he added. Asked if he had any plans of returning to office, the Chief Minister said, "That will be decided by the expert committee." The poll watchdog Election Commission (EC) announced early voting on April 23 in Maharashtra. The 14 constituencies have been left to a scrutiny in the afternoon while the process of polling has been initiated in the morning. The vote count will be held on April 30 after which the results will be declared on May 15. In the state, where the BJP had won the 2014 assembly election by a comfortable margin of over two lakh votes, 1,653 polling stations are still being held and counting is underway in 71 of these. This year, more

Its build process includes a large component called "fuzzy" which creates an overall tune, the tune apparently comparable to the degree of the three instruments combined together in a live SoundCloud set. The opportunity to record in real-time on a number of MIDI instruments is an important acquisition for such an interactive instrumentation. The 'fuzzy' engine has a relative-sensitivity controller which enables users to safely instrumentation their MIDI tracks by altering the fuzziness and sync of the fuzzing engine. The snap to audio is automatically applied to other instruments like drums and violin within a set with that the relative sync of all instruments. A user interface allows to set up unique settings on the sounds and the "fuzzy" type of effect to make. A MIDI instrumentation track is modifiable by moving a bar above it. To all the instruments in a MIDI track can be enabled and disabled on each track. The track editor has the automated ability to make alterations to the MIDI tracks within the sound, as such as:

? Set the pulse for every instrument ? Set the panning for each instrument ? Remove an instrument from the MIDI Track ? Change the panning of an instrument ? Change the track pitch for an instrument ? Set the sync for every instrument ? Adjust the sync of every instrument ? Adjust the type of 'fuzzy' effect used on every instrument ? Change the velocity for every instrument ? Change the relative sensitivity of every instrument ? Start the recording of a new instrument in a custom track/* * Copyright 2013 ZXing authors * * Licensed under the Apache License, Version 2.0 (the "License"); * you may not use this file except in compliance with the License. * You may obtain a copy of the License at * * * * Unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing, software * distributed under the License is distributed on an "AS IS" BASIS, * WITHOUT WARRANTIES OR CONDITIONS OF ANY KIND, either express or implied. * See the License for the specific language governing permissions and * limitations under the License. */ #import "ZXOneDimensionalCodeWriter.h" / * Implementations should subclass this as needed. */ @interface ZXOneDimensionalCode33
