Police received a call around 7:45 p.m. on Saturday from a resident at 4123 23rd Ave. N.W., near where a man was confronted. Officers detained a man, identified as Kenneth C. Randall, 38, of Benton, and found a 12-gauge shotgun in a wooded area behind the apartment building where Randall had been. North Washington police were called to the same apartment Sunday afternoon. Officers talked to a woman who said a man who was disturbing her tenants at 828 N.W. 21st Ave. N.W. also had a handgun. Police found the man, believed to be the same man who shot Sunday, and recovered the weapon.

Novel Heat Shock Protein 90 Inhibitors for the Treatment of Breast Cancer. Breast cancer is one of the most common and deadly malignancies in women. Although there are currently various types of medical treatments, the development of novel chemotherapeutic agents is needed. Heat shock protein 90 (Hsp90), an important molecular chaperone involved in protein degradation and cancer development, has been identified as a potential drug target for the treatment of breast cancer. In this review, we address a variety of Hsp90 inhibitors and their preclinical and clinical application for breast cancer treatment. In addition, we discuss the challenges and opportunities for the future application of Hsp90 inhibitors for the treatment of breast cancer.
